

What Is Your Image of God?

Rebecca Ruiz – Staff at Loyola Press, Chicago

Recently, I had an enlightening conversation with friends about how we envision God. It's a really interesting question, because how we imagine God determines how we relate to God. For instance, if I see God as an old, bearded man on a cloud, I will find it pretty difficult to relate to him. I'm not really well-versed in talking with old men who live on clouds and, in fact, I don't know anyone who lives on a cloud. If I see God as a harsh judge who keeps a tally of everything I do wrong, I will be afraid all the time and will not want to approach God at all.

When St. Ignatius first started pondering God, he knew God loved him, but he still considered himself a terrible and unworthy sinner. As he progressed in the spiritual life, though, he understood God's love and individual concern for him as being so deep that it was nearly unfathomable. In his book, What Is Ignatian Spirituality?, Fr. David Fleming, SJ, writes:

Ignatius experienced God as an intensely personal, active, generous God, a God as Love loving. God creates, and by so doing God is actively showering us with gifts. God acts, and all his actions show his wisdom and love. God's love is unconditional. It is not something we earn, or buy, or bargain for. (8)

Ignatius realized that although he was a sinner, he was a profoundly loved sinner. And he realized that God had created everything for him, so that he could know God. After that, Ignatius felt impelled to share about God's personal love for each individual person. He thought long about how to express his experience of God's love to others.

One of St. Ignatius's solutions was to invite individuals to imagine Jesus sitting next to them. He advised that one ought to talk with Jesus as one would talk with a dear friend. This is a remarkably effective method, because it makes God more relatable. If I imagine Jesus as a trusted friend instead of an old man in the sky or a harsh judge, I find that I am able to converse freely with him. I am not afraid to speak truthfully with him; my words are unguarded. I know that there is no need to come up with rosy images or words that impress. Through this prayer experience, I am also more able to understand at least a fraction of how much God loves me, because I have experienced the generous love of a friend before. And I experience a newfound gratitude for the gift of this life-sustaining friendship.

What is your image of God? Pray for the grace to relate to God personally and understand God's immense love for you.

God, help me to know you as you are,
To experience that fathomless love that St. Ignatius experienced.
Allow me to see myself as you see me,
To feel the warmth of your loving gaze upon me—
Loved, treasured, worth dying for—
And give me the grace to respond to you
In generosity of heart.
Tell me,
How can I respond to your love?
What can I do for you?

1st Sunday of Lent

###

Each Lent presents a new opportunity to repent and grow in our relationship with Jesus who gave his all so we could be his. We need only to call on Jesus, and he will deliver us from our sins.

LITURGY OF THE WORD

In the Book of Deuteronomy, Moses instructs the people to offer gifts to the Lord for their freedom from slavery in Egypt, and for God's never-ending care. In the second reading, St Paul reminds his readers that without any distinction of nationality, all who call on the name of the Lord will be saved. Luke's Gospel tells how Jesus withstood the temptations of the devil.

2019 Lenten Retreat with

Fr. Pierre LeBlond, OP

March 18, 19, 20 at 7:00pm

Getting the Heart and Mind of Christ in You

Does your prayer time feel like talking to a wall? Are you looking for God's answers only in external events? This retreat is meant to draw your attention to God's active presence in you. Discerning the transforming actions of God abiding in you and choosing to cooperate with it is what Saint Paul called the practice of the theological virtues of Faith, Hope and Love.

Faith is the ability given by the Spirit of God to see yourself, others and the world with the eyes of Christ, with His mindset.

Hope is the renewal by God of your expectations and desires according to the Heart of Christ.

Love is the transformation of our being into the being of God's Incarnate Son. He is Love Itself that is loving us into a new being.

Holy Michael, the Archangel, defend us in battle. Be our safeguard against the wickedness and snares of the devil. May God rebuke him, we humbly pray; and do you, O Prince of the heavenly host, by the power of God cast into hell Satan and all the evil spirits who wander through the world seeking the ruin of souls. Amen.

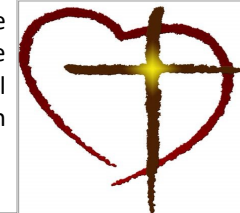

Stewardship Reflection

Today's first reading describes the offering of first fruits the people of Israel were to present to the Lord in thanksgiving for their deliverance from Egypt and the gift of the promised land. Is my offering at today's Mass an appropriate response to the many blessings the Lord has given me?
